Hiring Manager

TotalEnergies

Dubai, UAE

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to apply for the FP&A and Economist role at TotalEnergies, Dubai. With an M.Sc. in Financial Economics, Big Four experience at Ernst & Young, and hands-on financial reporting and ERP implementation experience in an active commercial environment, I am drawn to a role that combines rigorous financial planning with an economics dimension — precisely the profile this position requires.

In my current role at Promotech Advertising, Dubai, I prepare monthly financial reports covering revenue, gross margin, and cost variances for CEO review; run month-end close including account reconciliations and ledger reviews; and support IFRS-compliant annual audits through organised, audit-ready documentation. I also monitor cash position and support liquidity planning across 475 active accounts — work that maps directly to the monthly P&L analysis, cash flow statement preparation, and actuals-vs-budget reporting responsibilities outlined in this role. Additionally, I led the full ERP migration from Tally to Odoo, managing data validation, cross-team coordination, and go-live — giving me practical experience of the system discipline that large finance functions rely on.

My academic background in Financial Economics — including applied econometrics, monetary economics (Columbia University), and financial reporting (University of Illinois) — equips me to engage with the economic analysis and long-term planning elements of this role. I understand that TotalEnergies operates at the intersection of energy markets, infrastructure finance, and global capital flows, and I am eager to bring analytical rigour grounded in both finance operations and economic methodology to your FP&A function.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my background can contribute to TotalEnergies' financial planning and analysis team. Thank you for your consideration.

Yours sincerely,

Muhammed Ashnad K
